

Hang Around

Design Derek McLeod & Joy Charbonneau

Year 2023

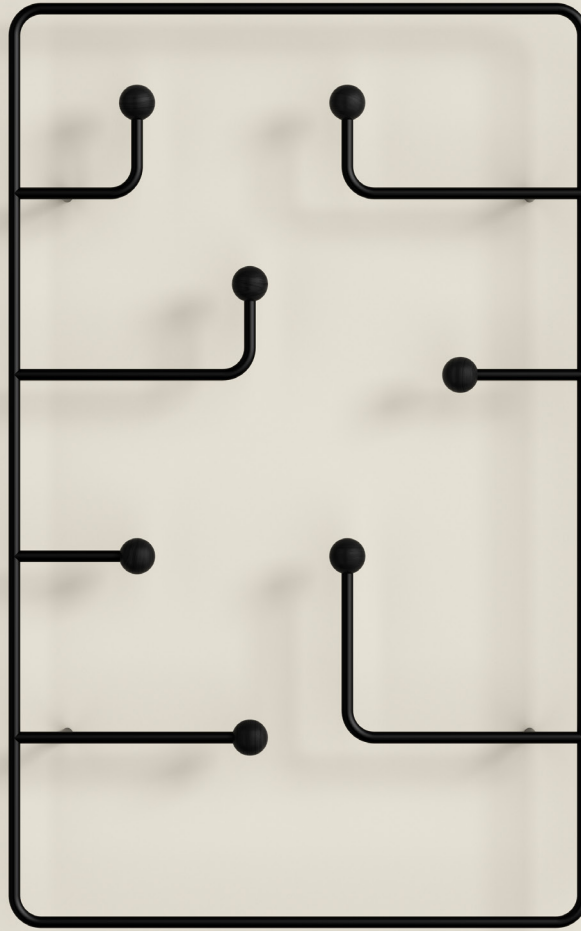

Derek McLeod

Derek McLeod describes his pieces as archetypal, comfortable, and usable – objects that make life better by looking and performing well. Since 2008, the Canadian cabinetmaker has utilized his sense of craft and attention to detail to design timeless products for contract and residential markets. Through exhibitions, competitions, and self-initiated efforts, he has expanded into materials beyond wood; spun steel, machined brass, leather, stone, and cast iron. His desire to explore the possibilities inherent to the material and its processes still guide the development of new ideas. Derek McLeod Design continues to grow through rigorous attention to detail, pursuing design excellence, and by taking creative chances to achieve compelling new products.

Joy Charbonneau

Joy Charbonneau is a Toronto based architect, artist and designer who has made a name for herself for her unique mix of artistry and leadership. For the last twenty years she has worked on a range of projects at all scales to bring beauty and optimism into the world. From work on award winning university architecture, to detailed artworks that demonstrate the profound beauty of natural hydrology patterns, Joy delivers with an aesthetic sensibility and ruthless discipline that expresses a rigorous understanding of material, and human experience.

Hang Around is an updated version of the classic coat rack. Spacious and sturdy, Joy Charbonneau and Derek McLeod's Hang Around has a soft, rounded expression that contrasts well to the sturdiness of the design.

The dedicated pegs and their respective bars will add a welcoming and distinctive vibe to hallways and bedrooms, waiting areas, hotels, and restaurants.

Produced in metal, the Hang Around is available in a large version with seven pegs, and in a small version with four pegs.
